

From: James Saville
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/16/01 10:55pm
Subject: Thank you

For settling a case that was about competitors who are too inept to make it in the marketplace, not consumers. I believe Microsoft is a great company, and has been developing some fantastic products over the years. It's a shame our system punishes success, as we have choices in computing, and have for some time. If Microsoft's competitors spent more time building great products, and less time whining, people would buy them. Thanks for not wasting more of our taxpayer dollars on a case that doesn't really mean anything. I choose to use their products - I have the skills to run Linux, Solaris, or any other operating system and application set - their stuff is just the better product, and worth the money. Perhaps folks will realize that many of 'consumers' don't use their products because we are forced to, but because we want to.

James Saville